What you'll need to create a developer account for yourself

To create this account, you'll need:

 An email address for your developer profile

This will be shown on Google Play as part of your public developer profile. You'll need to verify it by receiving a code. You can provide a different email address for app support queries, for each of your apps, once you've created your account. Learn more about developer verifications

 A contact phone number and email address for Google

These will only be used by Google to contact you if we need to, and won't be shown on Google Play. You'll need to verify them by receiving a code.

 A form of payment
